Annie Burrows is a wonderful new talent for Mills and Boon Historical Romance! Her second novel, My Lady Innocent is a richly woven romantic tale of power, passion and politics.

When Maddy's father refuses to give his allegiance to Henry Tudor, Maddy finds herself being branded a traitor's daughter and treated no better than a servant due to her cousin's selfish nature. Maddy may think that she's insignificant in the grand scheme of things, but she doesn't know the full story. However, after stumbling on a private conversation between her cousin and her lover, she realizes that her life is in dreadful danger...

Luckily, for Maddy, the King wants her to marry one of his knights, Sir Geraint, who may only be a wool merchant's son, but who is determined to show her that he's now her lord and master...

Annie Burrows is a supremely talented storyteller whose books will delight lovers of historical romantic fiction everywhere! Dramatic, romantic and passionate, My Lady Innocent, is historical romance at its absolute finest! Five red roses. JB
